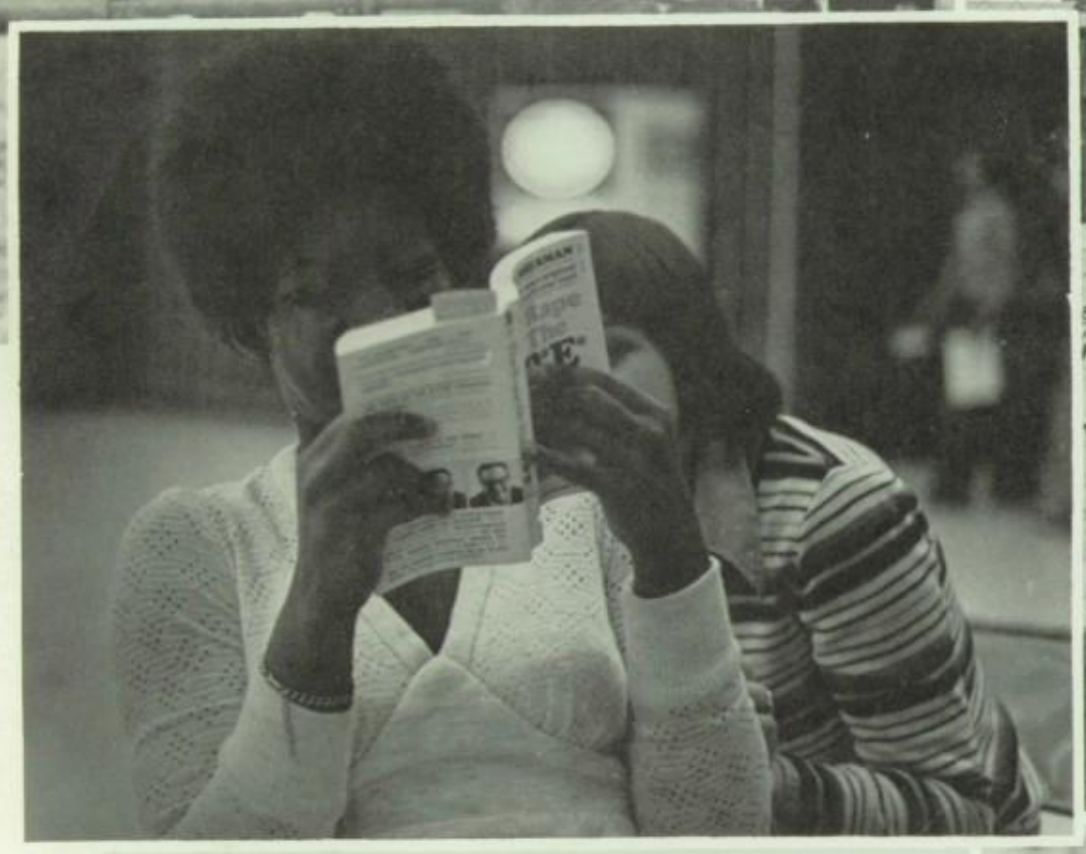
Home coming

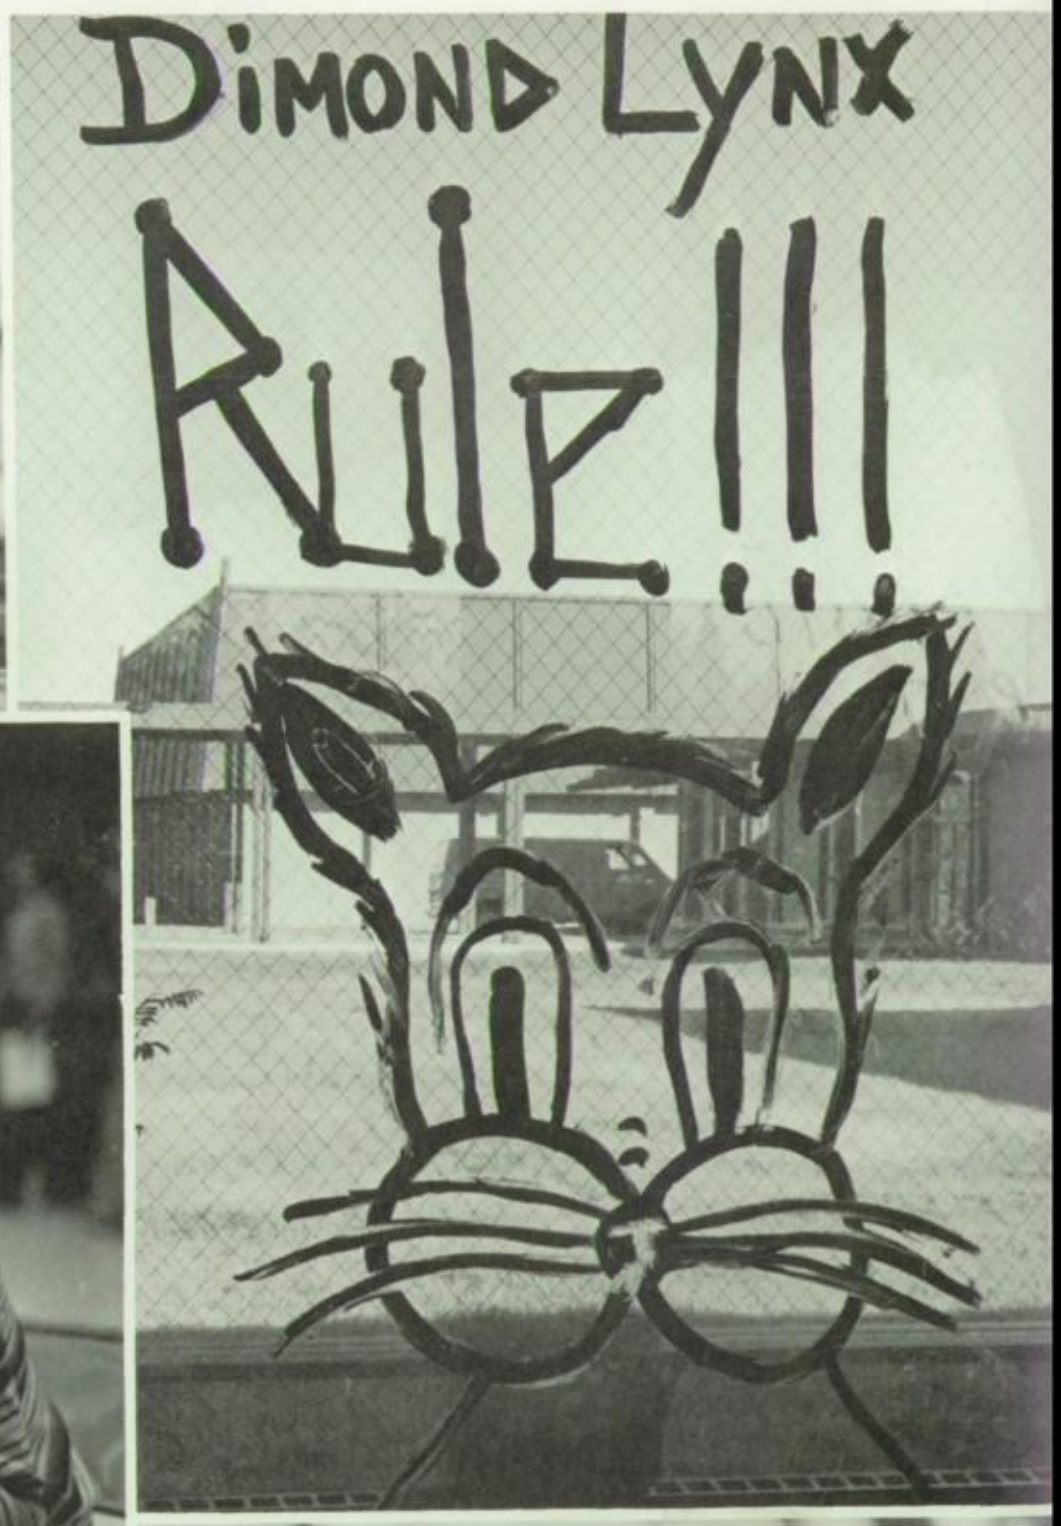
Bill Lovdahl Queen Anne Weir

Senior Class Float

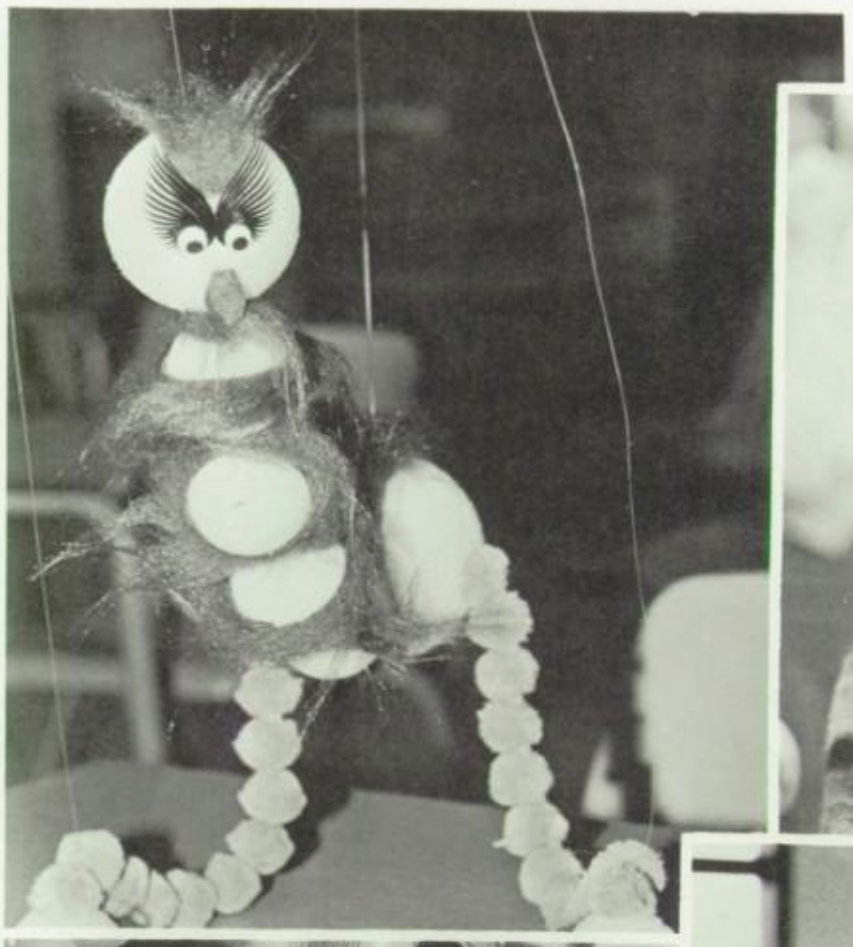
A decade at Dimond

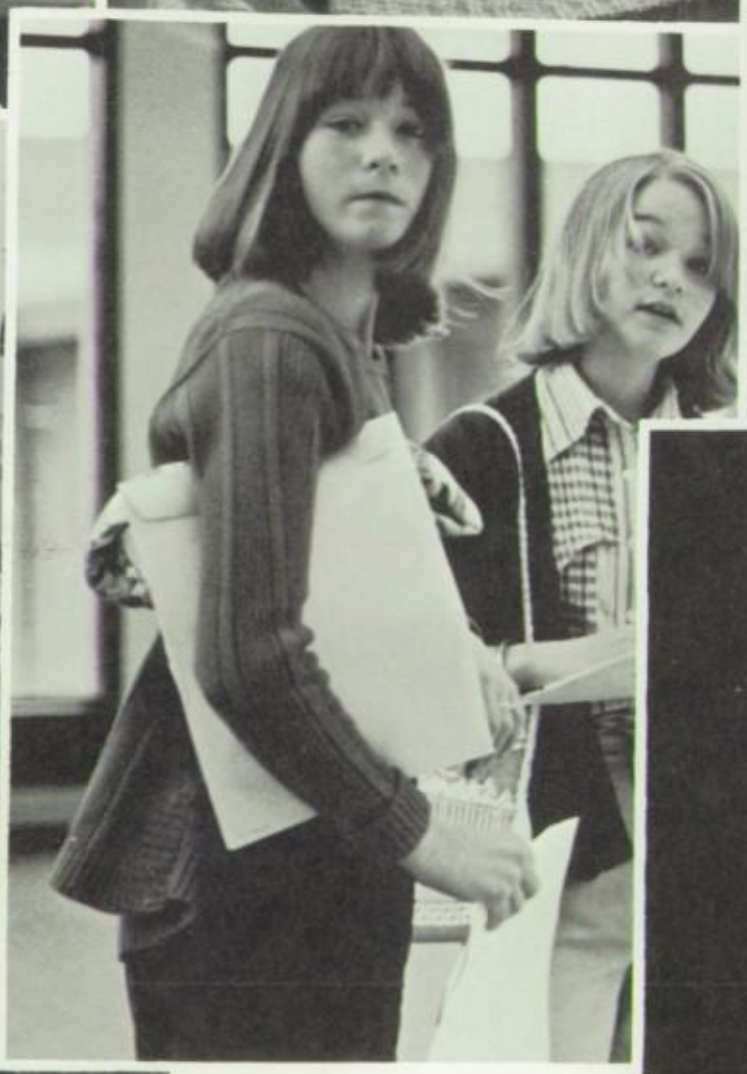
High School . . .





the threshold of new experiences.





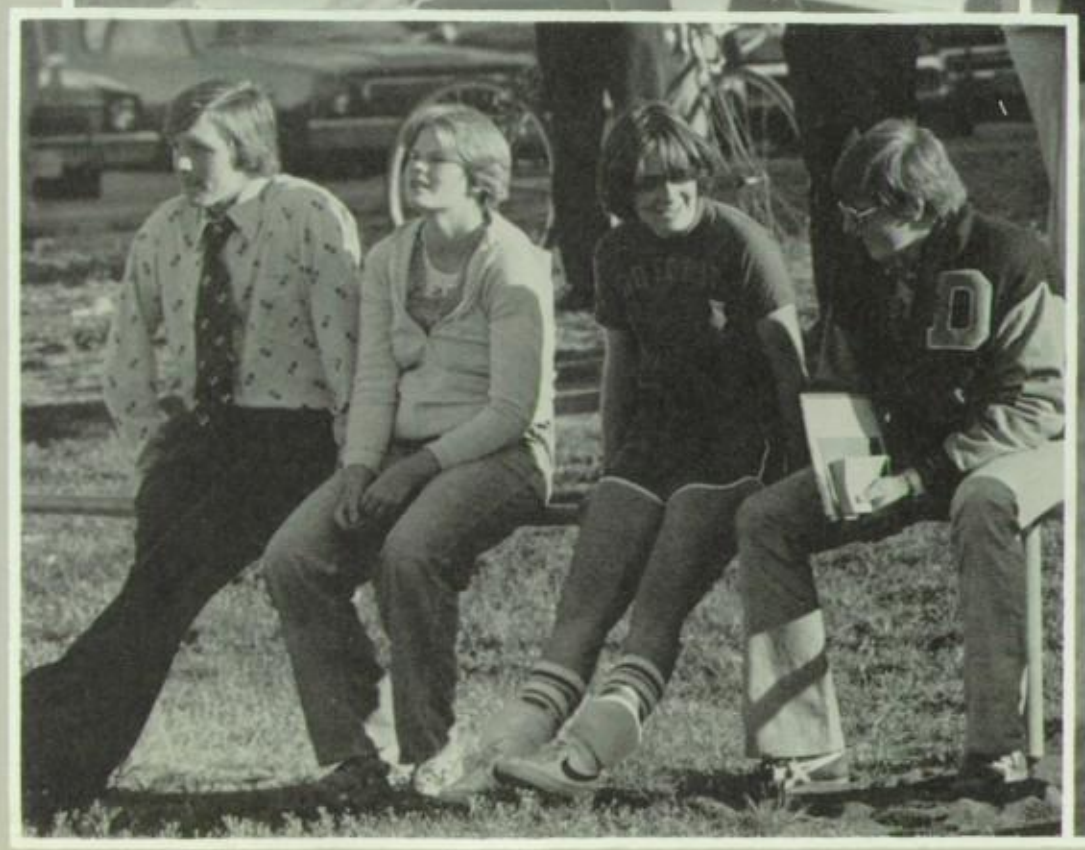
We assume the rolls of Freshmen, Sophomores, Juniors and Seniors

Junior Class Float

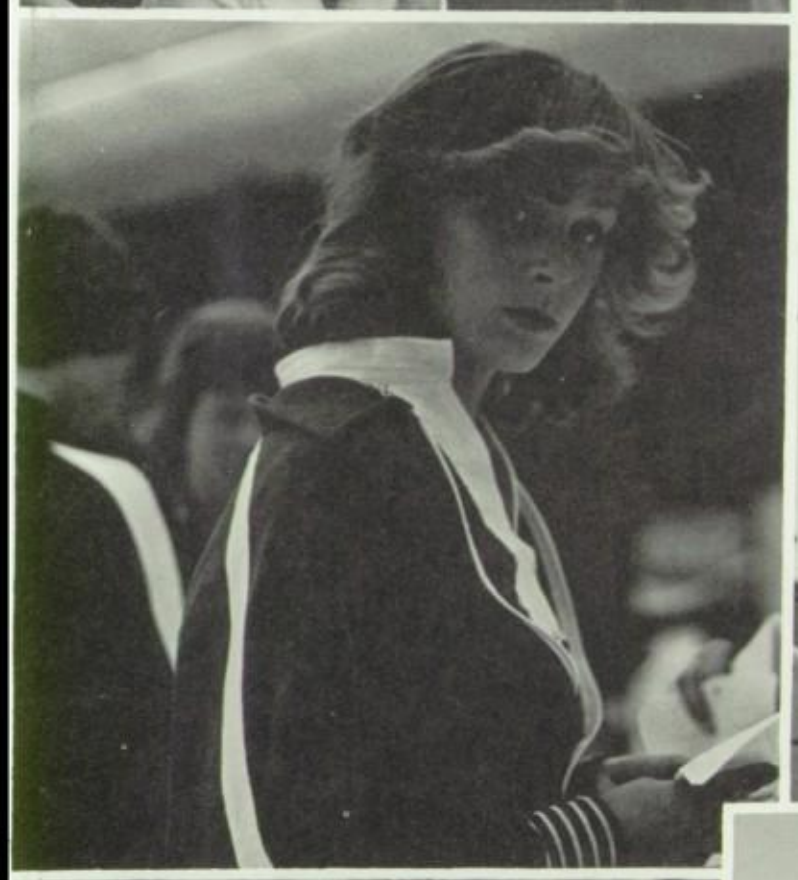
and move up the ladder
as the years pass by.

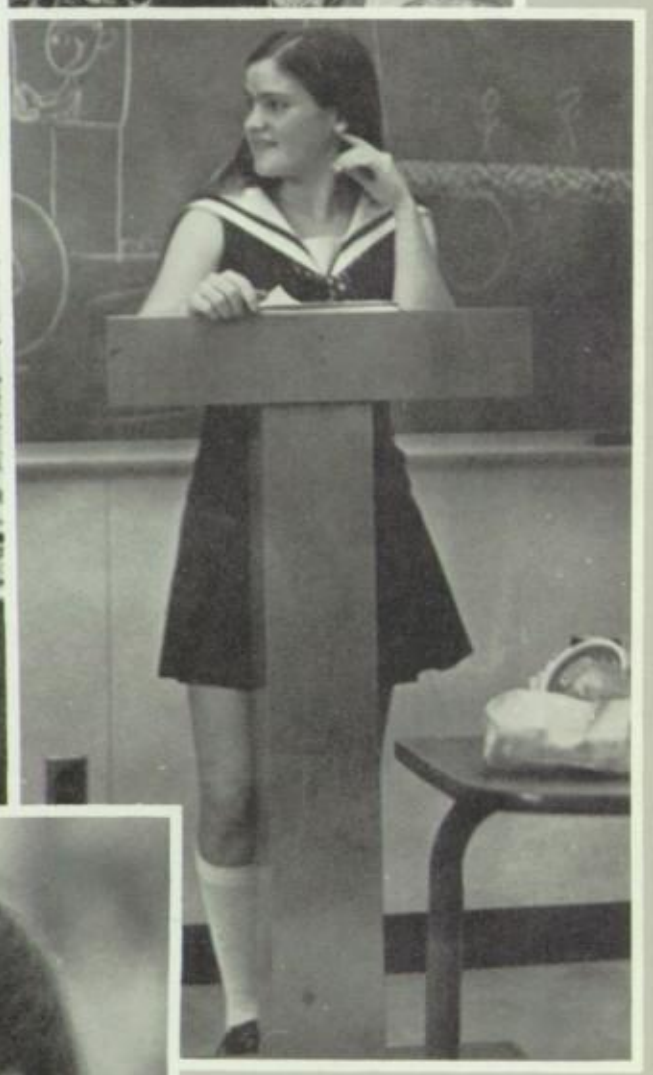
Sophomore, Freshman Class Float

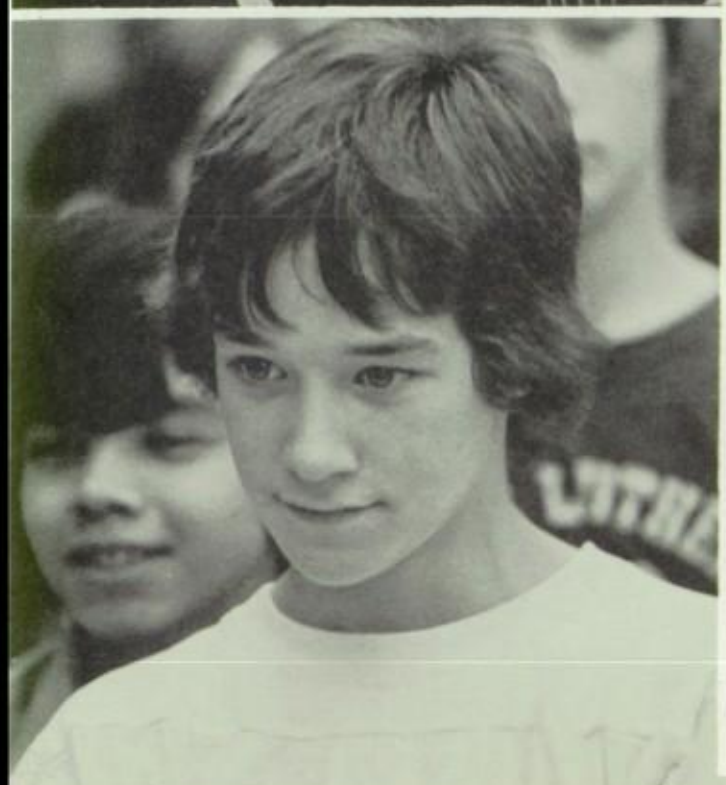
The climb is hard and meaningful,

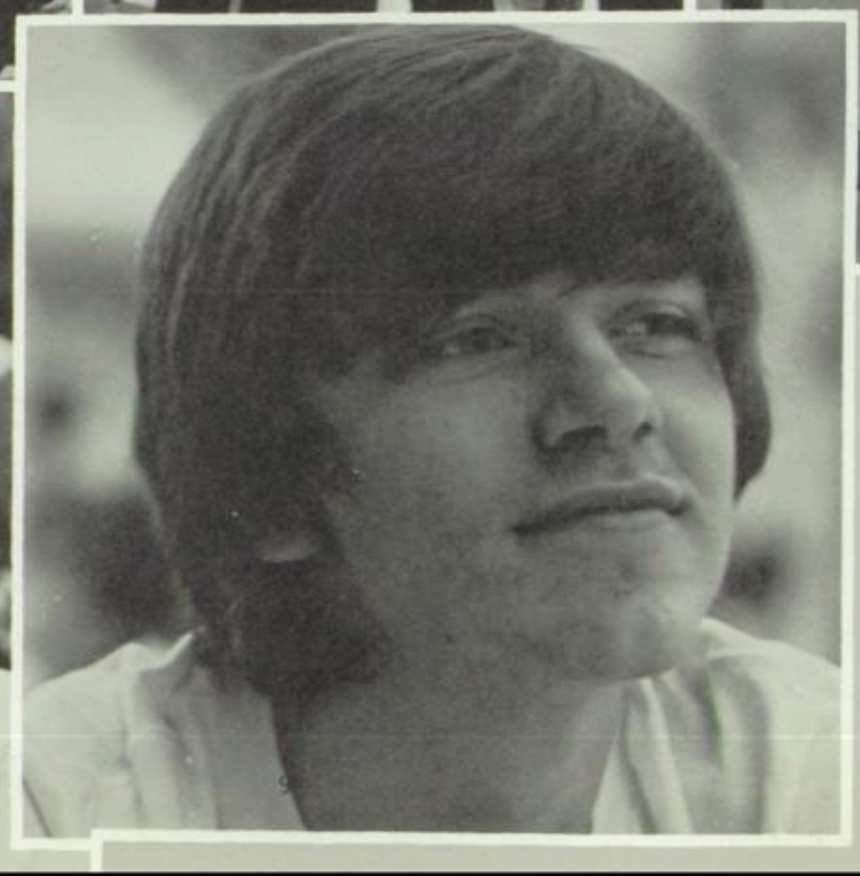


from crackerjacks to high school rings.

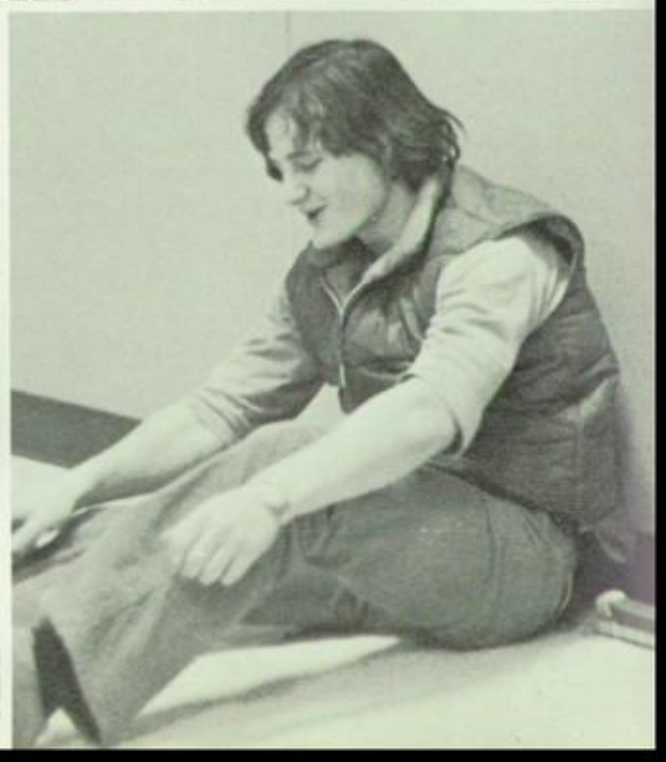




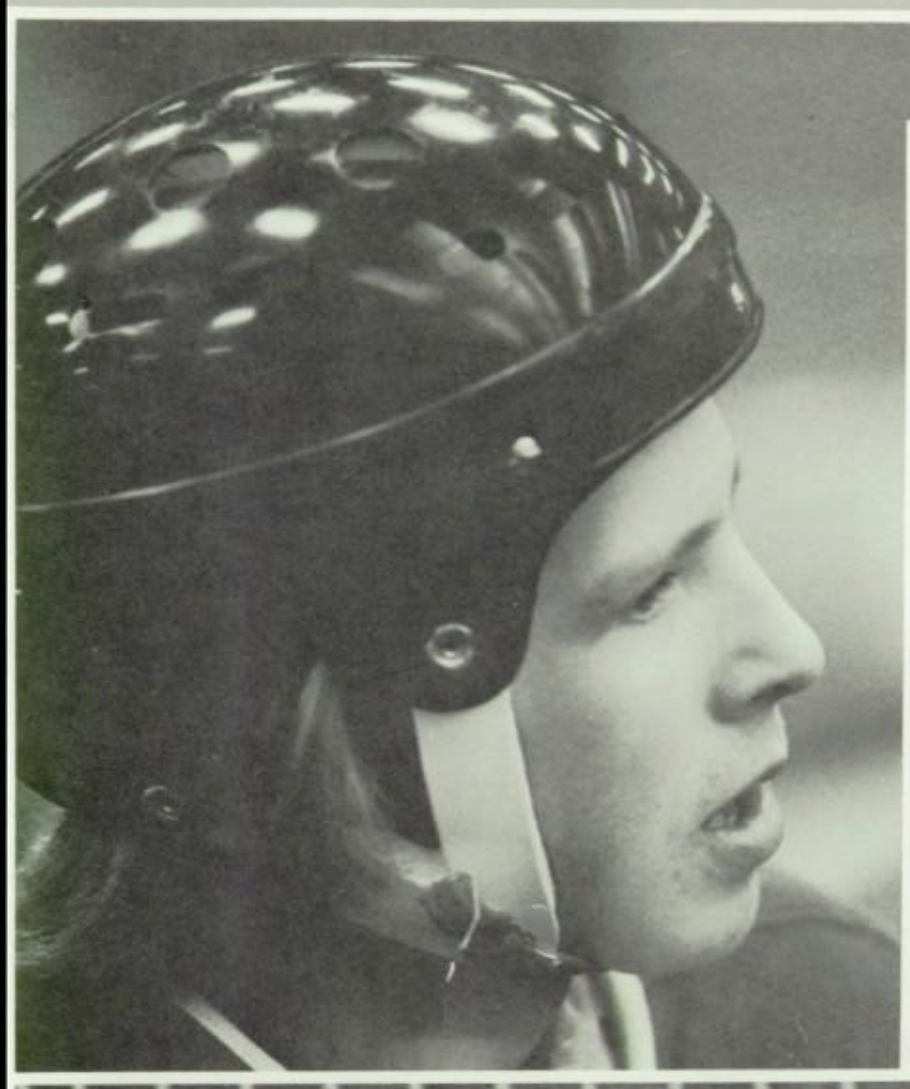


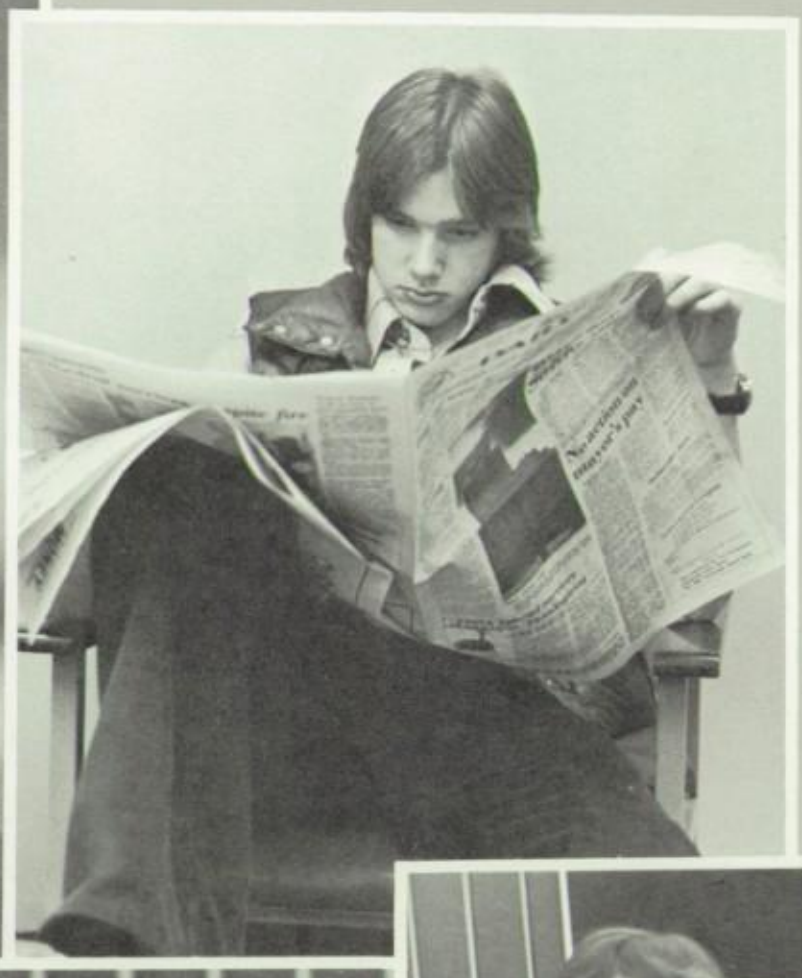


School spirit encaptures us,

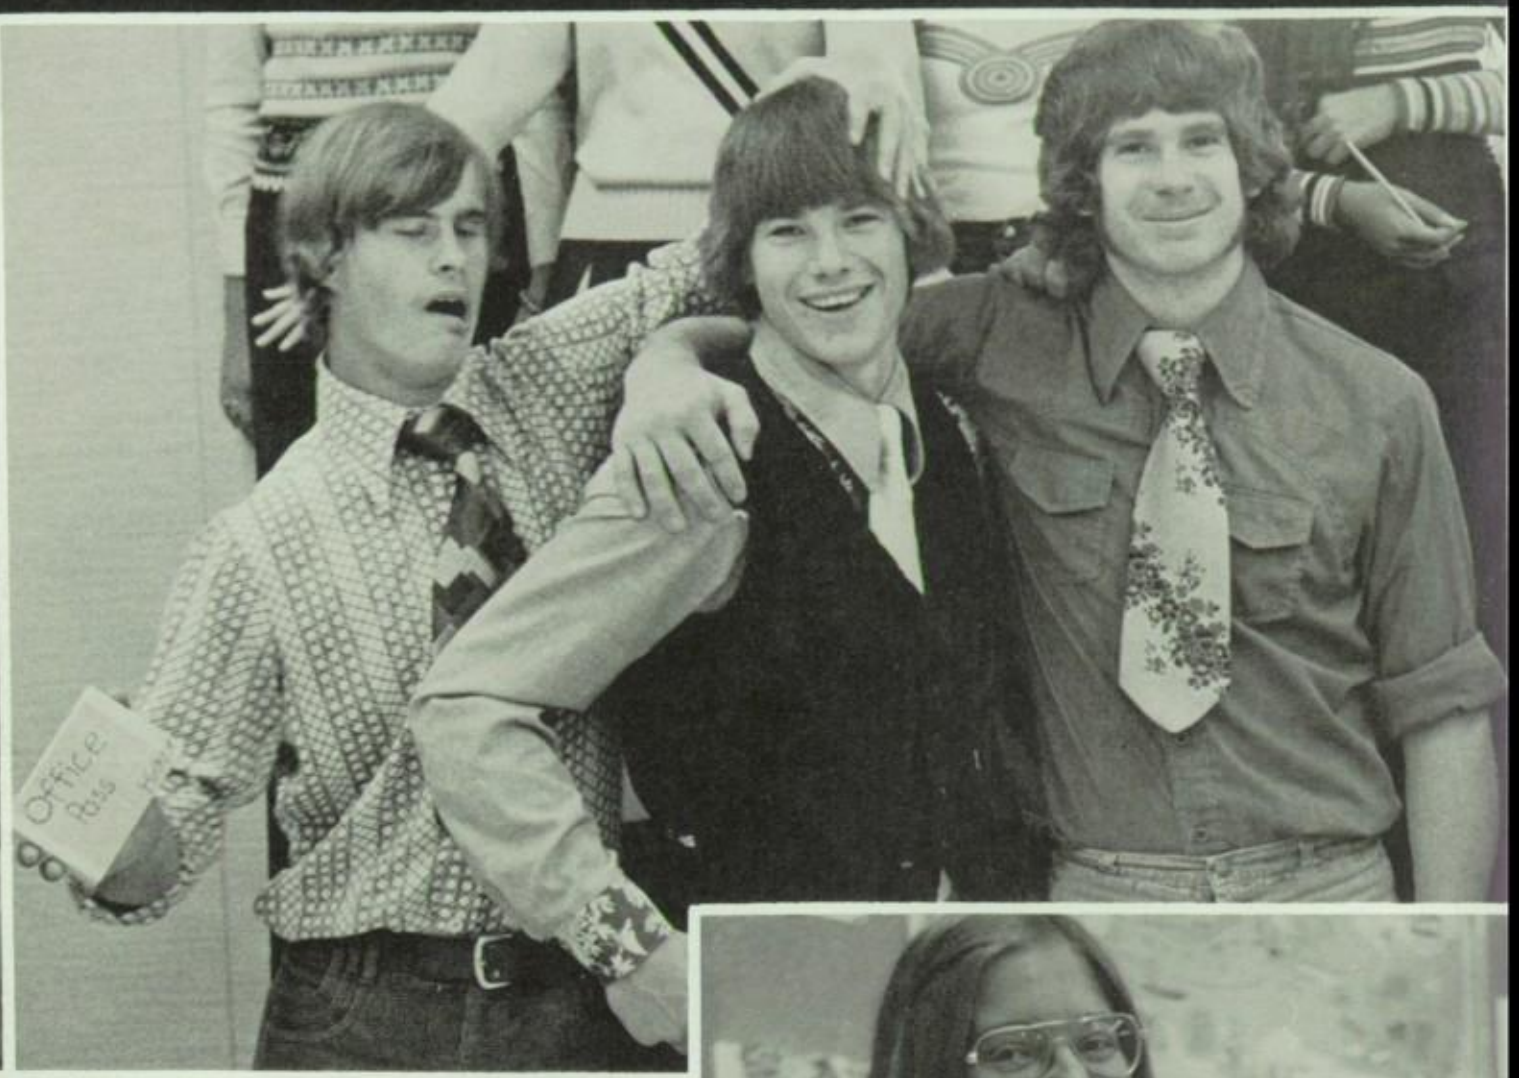


we fight for Dimond High





Smiles and acquaintances are easily formed . . .



they are kept forever.

We, we are in the prime of our lives

Hurled at me like a ball of fire,
The ashen-sphere-shaped mass becomes more vivid.
As it approaches, I bend my knees to a sitting position.
Putting my weight on the balls of my feet,
I prepare for its descention.
When the globe reaches my extended arms
It blazes a trail like a pioneer.
Forced by impact, the volleyball soars
high into the air,
Once again, a perfect bump!

WHEN . . .

Tribute to Dimond

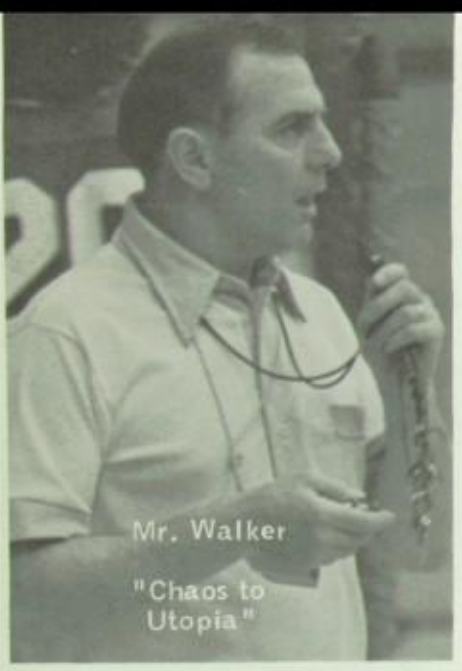
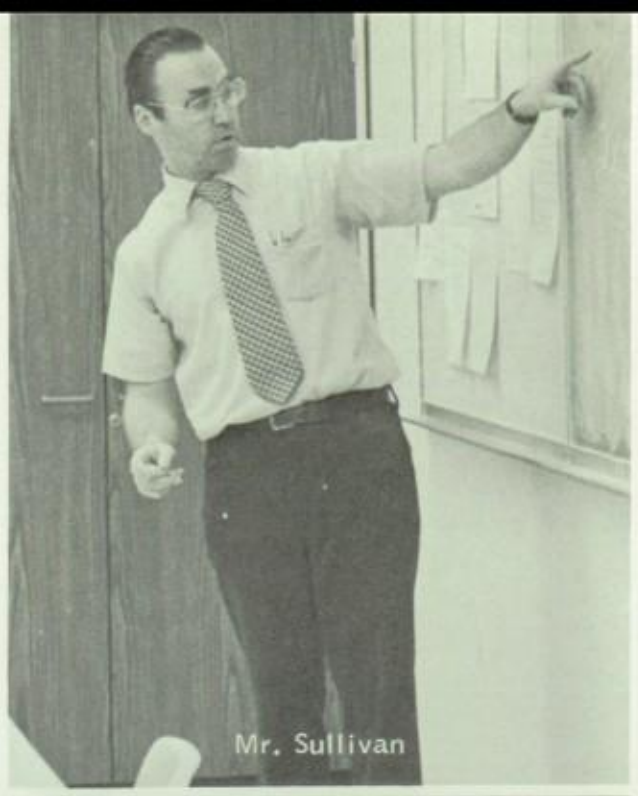
Original Dimond faculty members reminisce about their decade at Dimond.



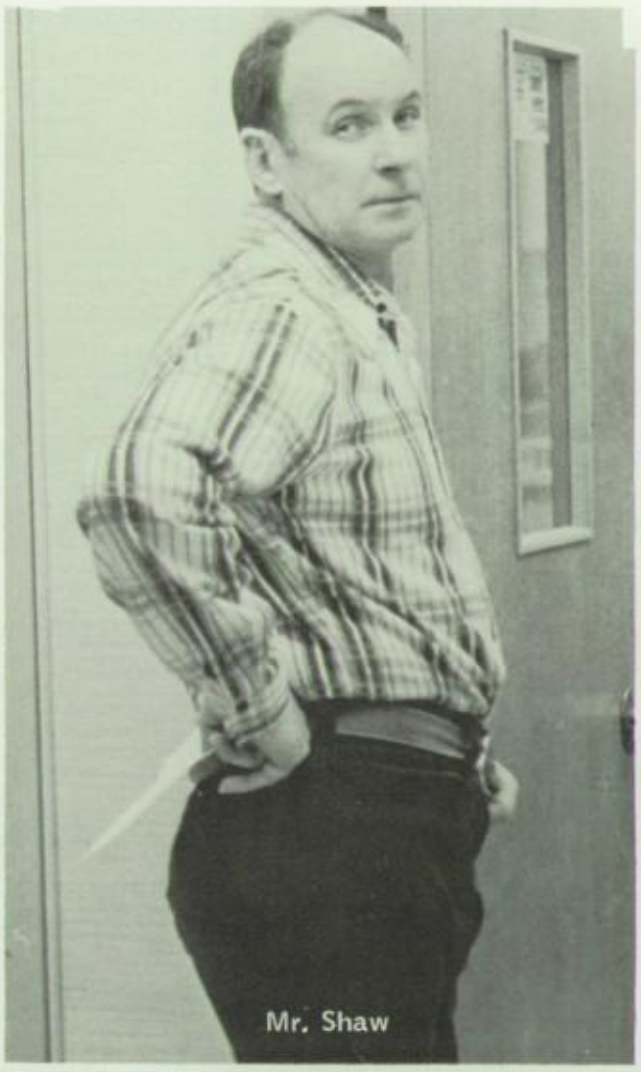
Mr. Walker

"Chaos to Utopia"

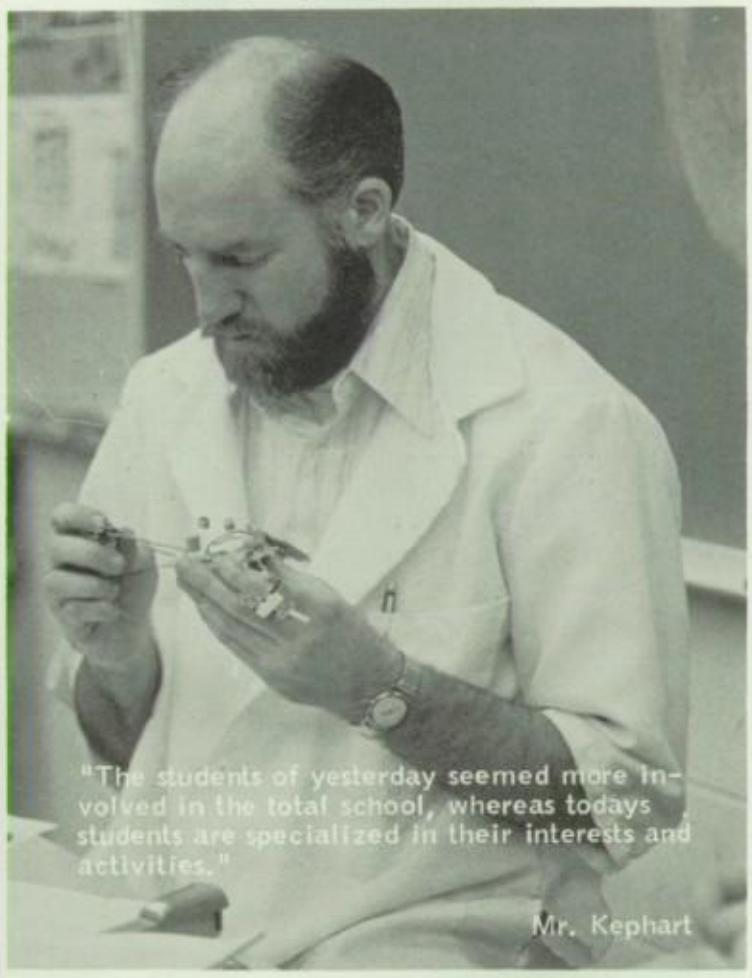


Mr. Sullivan

Mr. Bader

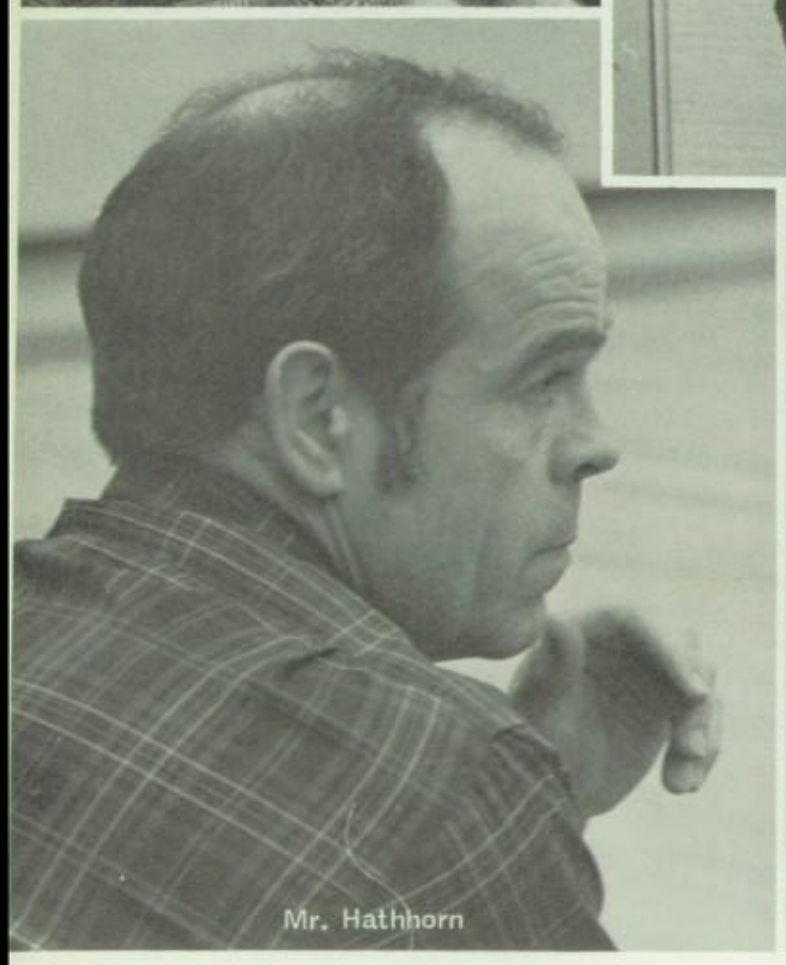


Mr. Shaw

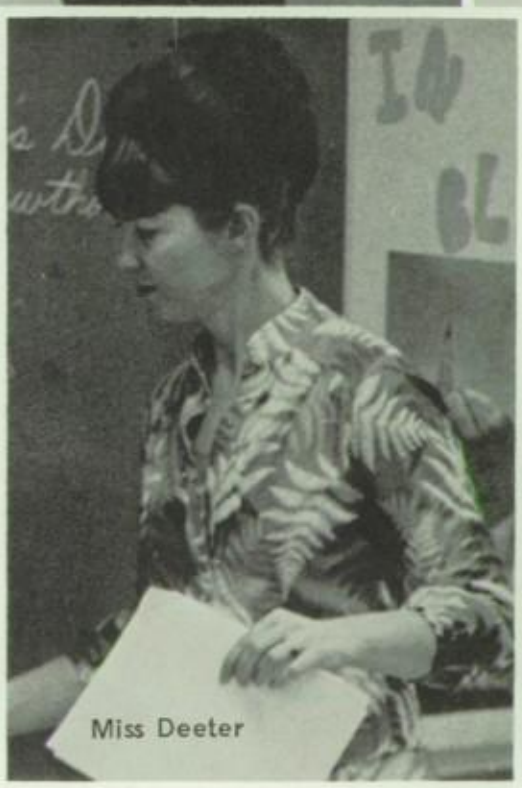


"The students of yesterday seemed more involved in the total school, whereas todays students are specialized in their interests and activities."

Mr. Kephart

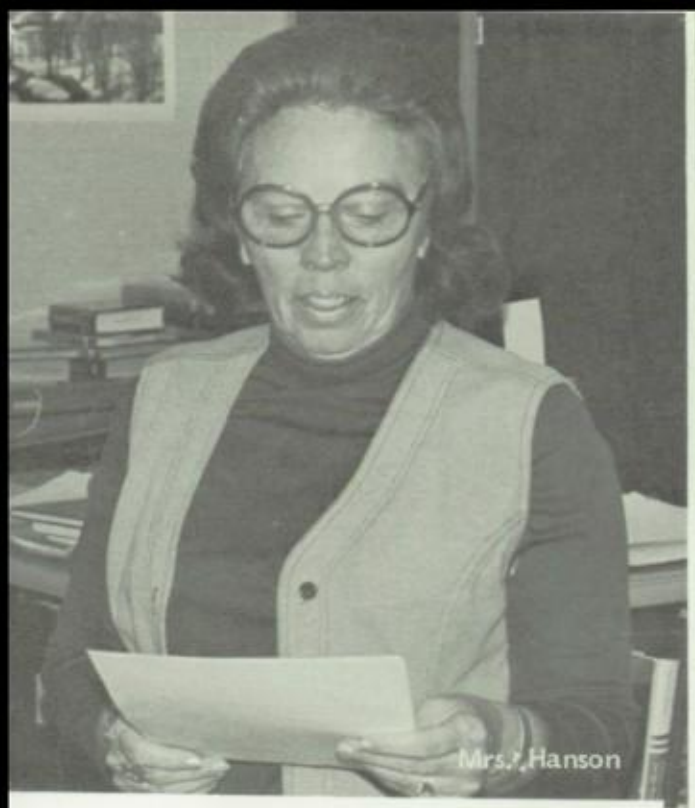


Mr. Hathhorn

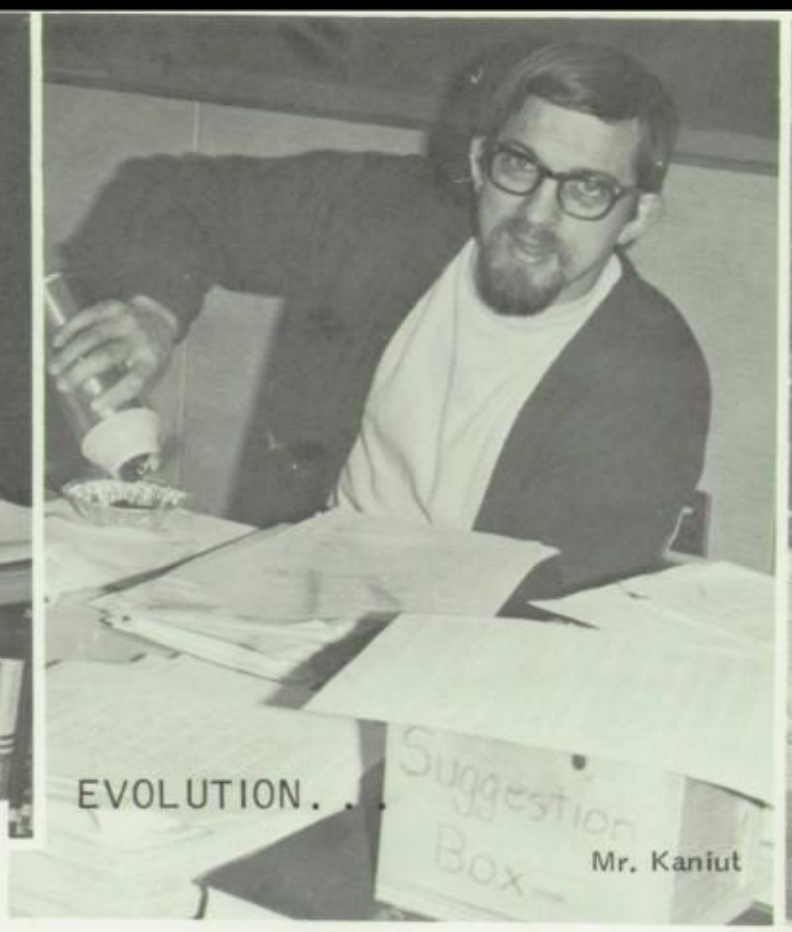


Miss Deeter

Mrs. Huff

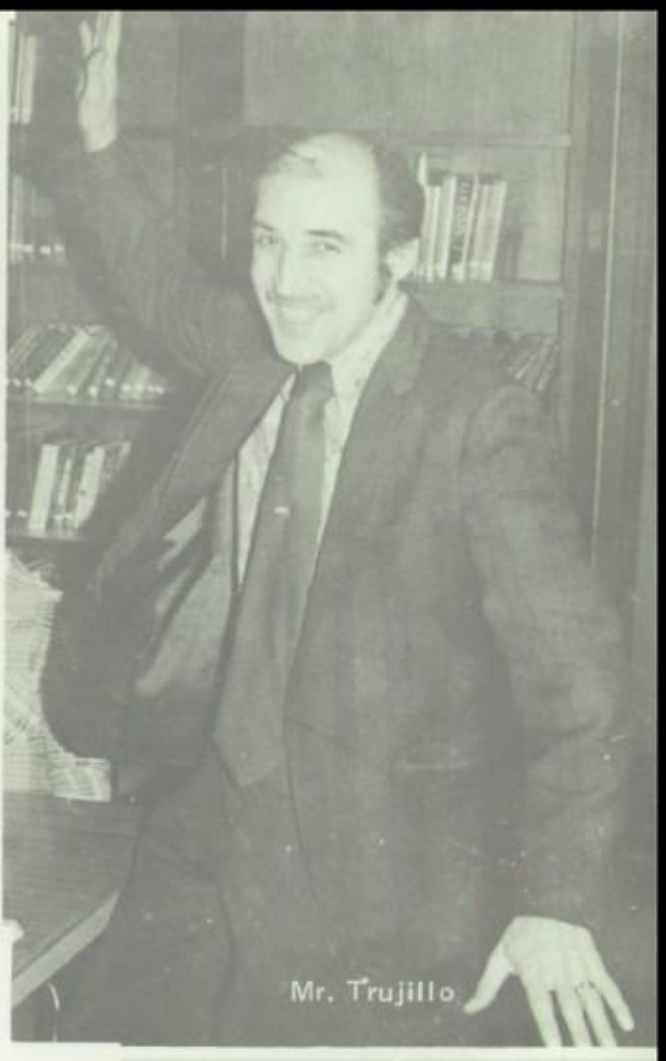


Mrs. Hanson



EVOLUTION. . .

Mr. Kaniut



Mr. Trujillo

We have twice the faculty and staff
and many changes--make you laugh. . .
from "no boots" or hats and short, short hair
to visors, bibs and T-shirts that dare.

In '66 they didn't like work
but tried to fool us and brought their books.
Garbage was put in cans in the halls,
but now the pails are wall to wall.
A swat was when you grabbed your knees,
but now you watch it on TV.
Lockers were for storing your goodies,
and now are sign posts and graffiti.

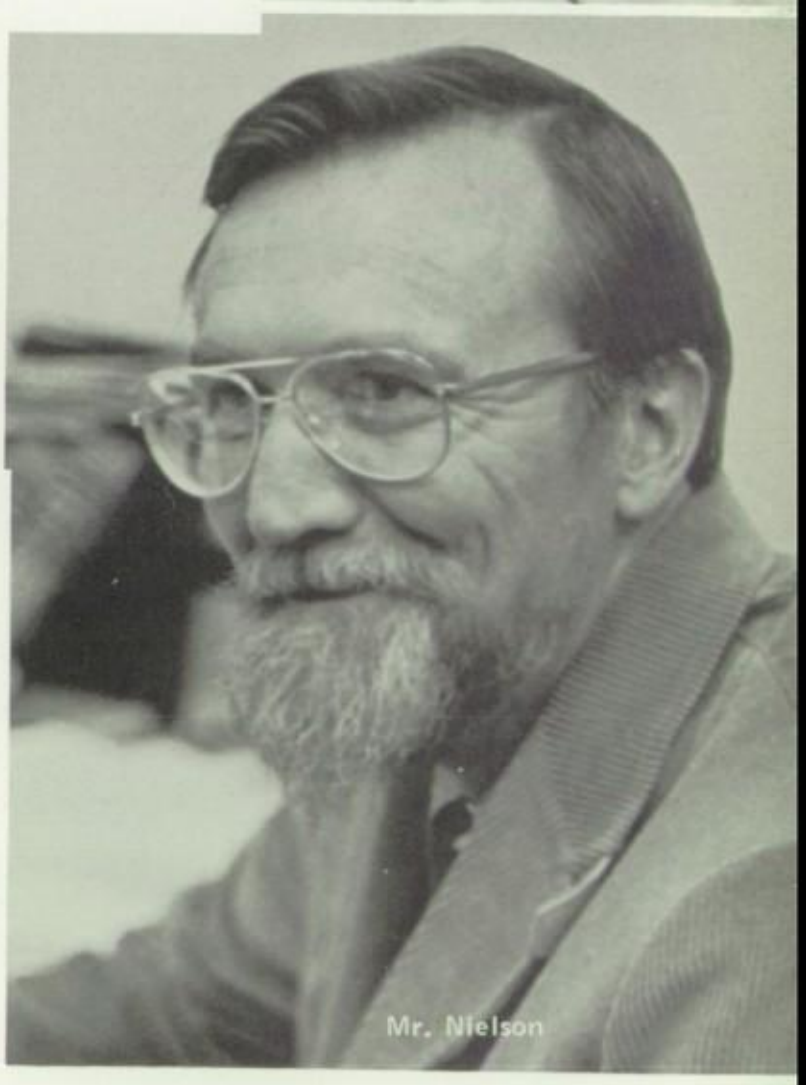
The library was a place to study;
in the lunch room you ate with a buddy.
In the library now you socialize;
and lunch room food about you flies.

Mrs. Lust

Mr. Utter

Mrs. Kurtz

"I remember when the Dimond library was in the E Curriculum Center."



Mr. Nielson

Tomorrow is the day...

Every day that passes brings you a little bit closer to your goals for the future. No matter what these goals may be, there are some things you should know about banking that could make them easier to obtain. National Bank of Alaska can help you get started. We have the services and we'll answer your questions.

The stone statues of the arctic

Before the arrival of the white man, Eskimos had developed a utilitarian art form which consisted of a stone figure — the Inukshuk. Used as a landmark, as a silent sentry to the restless herds of caribou, or as a spiritual companion to the wanderers of the arctic, the Inukshuk symbolized the strength and durability of man.

These qualities led us to select it as our corporate symbol. A stylized Inukshuk is set against the outline of a pipeline. The blue color in which it is normally illustrated represents the natural gas flame and the energy which flows from gas pipelines. We consider it our own landmark, reminding us of our obligation to the land, to the people of the North, and all those who depend upon our resources.

In its stylized form, our artist's Inukshuk is probably the first created in Alaska or Canada in more than a century. But at Alaskan Arctic Gas we think an appreciation of the past will lead to greater care for the future.

Before you graduate from school you should learn how to walk.

You go to school to learn how to think. Now, how about coming to an Earth® shoe store to learn about pure walking.

It's an entirely new experience for your poor mistreated feet. It's probably the easiest, most comfortable, and powerful way to walk you've ever experienced in your life. And it all begins the minute you step into an Earth brand shoe.

After all, someone as smart as you ought to wear a pair of intelligent shoes.
